Novel Statistics.

Mr. Sala, in his last letter from New York supplies a curious morsel in the way of statisties. ... An ingenious 'calvertation,' in Jefferson county, New York, has been footing up some of the losses of the war; and the result of one section of his calculations amounts to these facts: that crough men have already been slain to encircle the entire State of wew York, if their dead bodies were laid in one continuous line; that if they were placed in coffine and corded, they would count thirty-nine thousand cords; that if laid in a wall twentyhye feet thick, and thirty feet high, it would be over a mile in length, that if piled on a ten-acre lat, they would be nearly two hundred feet high; that if laid upon the ground, they would cover every foot of soil in Jefferson County; and, finally that sevenly-five thousand tone of human blood have been spill in Dixie's Land-enough to turn every spattle in Lowell. Nay, if the tears were added to the flood it would turn the machinery of the entire continent; and the unavailing sighs would fill every ocean sail."---Telegroph.

The Gunnery Experiments at Shoe-

Yesterday the most impotant of all the many montant experiments took place. The 600 pounder gun was fired against a floating target made on the principle of the Warrior. It was intended to fire at a range of 2,000 yards, but, with a view to secure accoracy; the firing tonk place at 500 yards. The charge of powder, however, it incresed in certain proportions, would represent the came effects at 2,000 yards. The shell that struck the target practically demolished it, and would have sunk any ship it might take effect upon. It was the universal opinion that this 500 pounder gun will sink any iron-clad ship that could he built. There is no country but England that has a 600 pounder, and we have only this one at present, but we are building more, Standard.
